Instructions:

1. Divide the class into pairs or small groups.

4. Instruct the students to choose one person in their group to describe their favourite room while the others listen and draw.
5. The student describing their favourite room should use prepositions of place and adjectives to provide detailed descriptions.
6. Encourage the students to be creative and include as many descriptive words as possible.
7. While the student is describing the room, the other group members should listen carefully and draw what they imagine based on the descriptions.
8. Once the descriptions are complete, have each group present their drawings and descriptions to the class.
9. As each group presents, have the other students guess which prepositions of place and adjectives were used in the description.
10. After all the presentations, facilitate a class discussion about the different rooms and the creative use of prepositions and adjectives.
